SCHOOL OF DENTAL AND ORAL SURGERY

630 West 168th Street

Office of the Dean

February 20, 1981

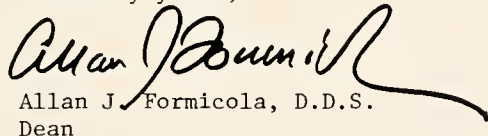

Dear Class of 1981:

Graduation from dental school is a time for celebration. Successful completion of the long, arduous process of preprofessional-professional education requires dedication, hard work and a high degree of motivation. You've sacrificed much to reach your goal of becoming a Doctor of Dental Surgery and now is the time to stop, reflect on your success, and accept the congratulations of your family and friends. You deserve their display of admiration and pride because you've earned them.

Graduation is also a time to think about the future and you have much to think about. Your chosen profession will provide you with a sense of well being since as a health care provider, you will gain great satisfaction from helping others. Certainly, you have a responsibility to yourself and your family, but you are fortunate in that these responsibilities will be met as you serve the public. From this time on you will be judged by the manner in which our profession serves the public through you as the new generation of dental professionals. This places upon you important obligations, that go along with the rights and privileges of your degree.

We want you to know that our doors are open to you as you begin the challenges of your chosen career. The faculty wishes you to consider Columbia always as a home to which you can turn for help and advice in a time of need. Please accept, on behalf of the entire Columbia family, my best wishes.

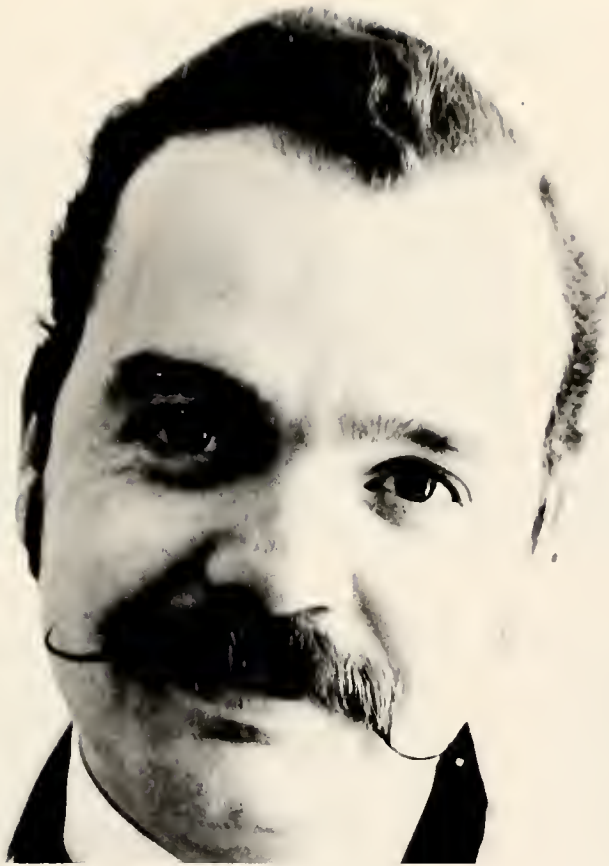

Sincerely yours,

Allan J. Formicola, D.D.S.
Dean

This year the students of the seventh floor would like to honor Dr. Low. Throughout our clinical training Dr. Low has shown a genuine interest and sensitivity to our learning experience. He has always found the time to help each and every one of his students. His method of teaching operative dentistry has been dominated by a feeling of mutual respect. Therefore, even with the frustrations of dental school Dr. Low remains one of our few bright lights. We are proud to honor one of our colleagues, teacher, and friend.

The familiar figure standing over the latest crossword puzzle is indeed a unique individual. Dr. Torresse has a dramatic effect on students. His boundless energy and enthusiasm for teaching are readily apparent to those students waiting in line for his assistance. His technical skill and clinical acumen are enviable, yet he greets even the most basic question with patience and encouragement. Perhaps his most outstanding talent is an ability to make students feel good about their work by providing a stringent yet realistic standard for clinical dentistry.

The students of the eighth floor wish to emphatically thank Dr. Torresse for the time, dedication, and keen interest he invested in so many of us. In addition, we thank him for providing a milieu in which learning the basic skills of dentistry was made pleasurable. It is a tribute to the man that these two seemingly separate goals were so effortlessly integrated each day he walked on the clinic floor.

Dear Dr. Axelrod

My two new gold teeth are too big + causing great discomfort in the eating process. Will you please make gold castings of the plastic temporaries which were comfortable and satisfactory, and prepare them for permanent installation in place of these tusks which will destroy me ~~thru~~ keeping me from eating, and will eventually bang my brains out.

Thank you

Bill Stevens

P.S. The basic problem remains:

The cusps are standardized, represent the cusps of a young "animal"... whereas in practice they should be the cusps of an old animal worn down by usage, matching their opposites

BELT BUCKLE VOTED OBSENE BY COMMITTEE

The recently formed committee Columbia University Teachers on Ethics (CUTE) voted unanimously yesterday to expel Jim Hunt from our class on grounds that his belt buckle "Makes a mockery of our profession, our school, and our country by de-MOLARIZING (sic) everything we stand for". Jim was brought before the committee meeting on Friday Night at which time committee chairperson Dr. ~~Lee~~ <sup>Sue</sup> ordered Jim to remove his belt at once. No further details were available.

CLASS SURVEY OUT

A survey conducted secretly has shown that NOT one member of our class intended to be a dentist when in high school. According to Bill (who checked (p2)

VACATION SHORTENED 15 MINUTES

Due to the fact that oral surgery will start at 8:45 and NOT 9:00 Monday morning, the long awaited Thanksgiving vacation will be shortened 15 minutes. Upon informing the class President of the news, Dr. M. was overheard saying "it was good policy and discipline to "wake them up earlier". A commuter from the class (who wishes to remain anonymous) said in an interview that this move was UN-called for and "will probably ruin my sex life."

SUE KARABIN GETS High!

(PRAISE FOR LAYOUT)

Our class pictures to be used in this year's yearbook were given high praise by faculty members, administration & just about everyone who has seen them. I think we should all congratulate Sue on doing a fine job of makeup.

into our high school yearbooks), out of the 57 of us there were supposed to be 5 sanitation men, 3 hairdressers, 25 travelling salesmen, 1 yankee bat boy, a ballerina, 6 grave diggers, 7 dope pushers, a cab driver, 4 veterinarians, 1 spunky Lyle look alike, 1 sumo wrestler, 1 flasher and a soda jerk. The significance of the survey was unclear

Joe Viana Attacked

While going to his car after a long day of classes, Joe Viana was suddenly jumped by a wall. The wall supposedly attacked so quickly that Joe didn't know what hit him. Fortunately, Joe was NOT badly injured and was back in action the next day. The wall (who wishes to remain anonymous) was quoted as saying, "I was only trying to get even."

PRESIDENT TO ACCOUNT FOR FUNDS

After learning that the class account was in the red, Treasurer Mitch Koonin asked the President to account for the classes money. After a 2 hour heated discussion, Mitch decided to get an auditor in on the case. The auditor's report will be released after the Thanksgiving vacation when Bill and the auditor return from San Tropez
